28 Columbiana Rotarians Visit Canadian Chapter

Group Taken On Sightseeing Tour, Filmed by TV Cameras

COLUMBIANA — Twenty-eight members of the Columbiana Rotary Club made the trip by plane from Cleveland Monday to London, Ont., as guests of the London Rotary Club. The trip was made in an airplane of the Trans-Canada Air Lines.

In London, the tourists were met by members of the London club in cars and conveyed with a police escort to city hall where they were officially greeted by Mayor Ray Dennis. At city hall, they signed the official guest register, which had been signed only last week by the lord mayor of London, Eng.

After lunch at the Hotel London, where the London club meets, they toured the industrial section of the city and the campus of the University of Western Ontario. Sightseeing cars were available for the visitors all day.

Besides the newspaper photographers, who met the tourists on their arrival at the airport, they were filmed by television cameras and were shown on the screen in the evening.

The London club was invited to make a return visit to the Columbiana club. The visit Monday was arranged by James Stiller of Columbiana and Doug Caven of London, international service committee chairmen of the two clubs.

AT THE CLUB meeting at Valley Golf Monday evening of members who remained at home, a tape recording of a telephone message from the tourists at London was heard.

George Seederly, program chairman for the meeting at home, had arranged a program on town planning with Attorney John L. Hutson presiding. Mayor E. L. Calvin and Allan White, of the planning commission, reported on progress

COLUMBIANA ROTARIANS VISIT IN CANADA.—Some of the 28 members of the Columbiana Rotary Club are shown as they arrived by plane in London, Ontario, Canada, Monday to visit the Rotary Club across the border. I. P. Lewis, Columbiana club president, is fifth from right in front. Third from right is James Stiller, chairman of the international service committee which arranged the visitation.

Contracts Let For 633 Miles Of Highways

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U)—The Ohio Department of Highways Tuesday told Gov. C. William O'Neill it awarded contracts for 633 miles of road during the last year.

In the brief report, the department said 264 contracts were used for the road mileage. Value of the work was set at 209 million dollars, including 48 million dollars worth of right of way and engineering fees.

Another $7,700,000 was awarded in maintenance and repair contracts and about $5,600,000 for preliminary engineering.

The contracts include 15 projects for 78 miles of U.S. routes at a cost of almost 69 million dollars. Twenty projects are included, covering 73 miles or primary state route at a cost of about $27,300,000. Both types received federal financial aid.

Federal assistance was also given on 52 projects for 76 miles of secondary state routes that cost 16 million dollars, four projects involving five miles of state route within cities that cost about $13,400,000 and 22 projects for 44 miles of secondary county and township roads that cost about $3,600,000. The state financed 151 projects for 355 miles of road at 79 1/2 million dollars.

The department's cash balance, the report showed, was almost 63 million dollars at the end of last year.

Accused Bogus Check Passer Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES (U)—A man accused of passing $500,000 in worthless checks across the nation in 14 years has pleaded guilty to five counts of forgery.

Municipal Judge C. Newell Cams Tuesday ordered Charles R. Speedie — known to police as "The Traveler" — to appear in Superior Court Oct. 8 for sentencing.

Police say Speedie, arrested last month in a Cleveland suburb, is wanted in seven states and 130 California municipalities in connection with bogus checks.

Leetonia Fire Chief Warns On Idle Calls

LEETONIA — A warning to village residents regarding fire calls was issued today by Fire Chief Robert Brown.

The chief said when a fire alarm is sounded, many people phone the call station to inquire about the blaze. This ties up the telephone so that volunteer firemen are unable to find out where the fire is located, he said.

Brown said the calling by curious people not only causes delay but is unlawful. He urged residents to discontinue the practice.

Stamp Collecting

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who thinks stamp collecting today is a kid's game is only kidding himself. It's a tremendous business, and a growing field of investment. "Stamps have become a form of international currency," said Jack Taub, who at 26 is a dealer who does a half-million-dollar volume yearly here and in London.

"There are now 50 million collectors around the world, including 15 million in the United States."

"Stamps have become a tremendous hedge against inflation. That is why many Europeans, who are afraid of their own currency, are investing in stamps. If wisely chosen, they are an even better hedge than diamonds."

"Even during the depression the value of stamps dropped only 15 to 20 per cent."

But as in every other form of investment, those who seek to build a fortune in postage stamps must know what kind to buy — and when to buy them. Right now — surprisingly — United Nations issues are pacing the field in the worldwide stamp collecting boom.

A number of canny investors have already made sizable fortunes from stamps put out by the big gas house on the east river.

"I know of one man, for example," said Taub, "who invested $200 in U. N. stamps and two years later sold them for $55,000."

The reason for the explosive rise in value of the early issues of U. N. stamps lies in their rarity — and a deepening interest in the United Nations itself.

"The U. N. printed six million of its first stamp in 1951," recalled Taub, "and there was so little interest in them that U. N. officials burned them by the hundreds of thousands."

"In subsequent printings of further U. N. stamps the number was lowered and lowered. Then, sometime after the Korean truce, collectors awoke to the fact that perhaps the U. N. was here to stay. Then the big scramble began."

"Now four to five million people are collecting U. N. stamps, and many of the scarcer issues have skyrocketed. A souvenir 15-cent sheet of stamps issued Oct. 24, 1955, to day is worth $20 — and they'll be worth more."

So much interest was stirred in the U. N. stamps that dealers set up the U. N. Philatelic Information Committee, with Taub as chairman, to serve as a worldwide clearing house for these issues.

But Taub warned that after Oct. 24, 1956, the U. N. began printing its stamps by the millions again, and the later issues are in plentiful supply and unlikely to increase greatly in value.

"The value of stamps is governed strictly by the law of supply and demand," he pointed out. "And not all are good investments by any means."

Taub said a portfolio of carefully chosen stamps will increase in value faster than a cross-section of industrial stocks or bonds.

Then why don't brokers save stamps?

"They do," said Taub, cheerfully. "So do bankers. They may do it for a hobby but they are people who like even a hobby to show a profit."

Quakers on the March!

Football fans don't have far to go to witness exciting games this season. They're being played right here in Reilly Stadium each Friday night.

The Salem High School Quakers have demonstrated themselves to be a stellar ball club, offensively and defensively, and should finish with a good season record by the time the last game is played Nov. 8.

The Quakers' adept ball-handling and physical conditioning reflects the able coaching of the head mentor, Earl Bruce. The former Mansfield coach is in his second year at Salem High.

When Salem faces Conneaut here Friday night the legion of Salem boosters will again be in the stands to cheer the Quakers on to another victory!

How's That Again?

The president of a California firm, writing in Fortune magazine, has launched a campaign to return to good old-fashioned logic in solving business problems. Blasting the currently popular "groupthink" or "brainstorming" session of many modern corporations as "cerebral pop-corn," he says logical reasoning offers the biggest odds for finding the best solution to a problem in the least time.

He sets down a five-point procedure for getting at the meat of the matter and cooking up an answer. He calls the system the "epistemological method."

"That, in fact, seems the largest factor in its disfavor. But if a man can use it without saying it, it may very well be the coming thing."

Something to Ponder

While millions of adults have been talking to each other about teen-agers, at least two research organizations have been doing scientific fact-finding about the youth of America.

What they have discovered are some surprising, even jolting, facts that should make all stop to ponder.

One of the surveys was made by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan at the request of and in conjunction with the Boy Scouts of America Research Service. The other survey was conducted by Scholastic Magazine's Institute of Student Opinion, another highly responsible organization.

The Scholastic Magazine survey was nationwide in scope and included interviews with 5,895 teen-age high school students in which boys and girls were about equally represented.

The Boy Scout survey was limited to boys between the ages of 4 and 16 and was undertaken to gather up-to-date information about the needs, interests and concerns of Explorer-age boys.

While the findings of only the first part of the scout survey have been released, one of the definite conclusions is that teen-agers rate parents and their opinions far more highly than has sometimes been supposed. For example, one out of every four boys picked his own father as the adult he most admired and most boys find more satisfaction in their family life than in any area of their hectic existence.

The disclosures of Scholastic Magazine's study were reported recently by Sylvia Porter in her syndicated column. The conclusions from this study are that a whopping majority of high school juniors and seniors today favor government control over some basic industries and services such as coal, steel, uranium, railroads, banking etc. — bigness in government, labor unions and industry. Only 19 per cent of the boys and only 5 per cent of the girls are entertaining the hope of owning their own business.

The facts brought to light in these surveys would seem to support the claims of critics that American youth is a willing slave to conformity but perhaps there are points of non-conformity which the researchers and survey analysts have missed altogether.

This possibility has been pointed out by Robert F. Gehehen, president of Princeton University, in his description of "a peculiar brand of non-conformity."

The Princeton president sees in the present generation of college students "certain desire for security." This he attributes to their background of war with all its uncertainties. He also sees a tendency among students to be "terribly honest with themselves" and have few illusions about either themselves or the world.

To Dr. Gehehen, the students today are "a combination almost of cynicism and idealism at the same time. Not many want to be heroes because they don't believe in heroes. But they are very concerned about being in a position to create a decent community. One can't even get them to admit to themselves that they have patriotic ideas; yet they want to play a meaningful part in building the world and working for peace."

In a few years the teen-agers of today will reach voting age and in less time than that many will be joining the labor forces of this country. What they are thinking now is firmly implanted and will carry over into their adult lives.

That is something to ponder.

We'll bet some of the 1957 bathing suits have made your head swim.

Year Ago and Now

By DAVID LAWRENCE

President Quoted on Authority for Troops

President Eisenhower's own words of just a year ago confirm the statements made in these dispatches this week that there is no authority to use federal troops merely to enforce court orders.

The official transcript of a press conference held on Sept. 11, 1956, reveals that the president acknowledged the restrictions imposed by the "Posse Comitatus Act," which specifically forbids the use of the U.S. Army to "execute the laws" of the United States unless "expressly authorized" by an act of Congress.

Here is the text of those sections of the press-conference transcript which related to the segregation controversy:

"Q (Edward P. Morgan, American Broadcasting Co.): Mr. President, I believe you said, sir, last week you had not been completely briefed on some of the aspects of state-federal responsibility in the segregation disputes.

"ONE OF THE most recent incidents occurred yesterday and, according to the dispatches, 'rangers' (state police) in the two of Texarkana did not allow two Negro students into the school in which they had registered.

"Would you consider that an incident in which the federal government had a responsibility, and, if not, can you give us an idea of what the formula is that would have to be followed for the government to intervene?

"The President: Well, briefly, here is—and this may be an oversimplification: A federal district court issues an order, let's say, about the entry of Negro students into a certain school.

"Due to circumstances of the kind, violence of the kind you describe, they may—they cannot enter.

"Now, that court must decide whether it believes it—someone is in contempt of that court. And at that point I think it is customary for the court to call in the Justice Department to assist in bringing the evidence and thrashing the case out. And then, that having been done, if anyone is in contempt, I assume that it is the job of the U.S. marshal to serve the warrants and to take the men, the offenders, to jail or to pay their fines or whatever happens.

"NOW, NO ONE can deplore violence in this thing more than I do. I think that violence sets us back, well—years.

"I think the youngsters that are indulging in violence are not being counseled properly at home.

"The states, I would hope, would exercise, first of all, their responsibility and authority in carrying out police functions to preserve law and order and to make certain that no one is injured; and, secondly, they ought, as a concurrent responsibility, to see and to help to see that the orders of a district court are carried out. And I think when that does not happen there is a failure somewhere. And it contrasts very badly with what happened in Louisville.

"Q (Louis R. Lautier, National Negro Press): Mr. President, I have been requested to ask this question:

"If, as you say, changing of traditions and the hearts of men will unfortunately take a long time, is not the solution of the present disorders in many parts of the South over segregation this, namely, that citizens must be restrained from expressing their prejudices in public actions when such public acts are in violation of the law?

"THE PRESIDENT: Well, as I say again, this is—the local court must determine whether there is someone in contempt of that court. And I know of no way from this distance that those things can be determined. But when the courts do call properly upon the attorney general, I am sure he will assist in every possible way.

"Q (Kay Ray, Houston Chronicle): Have you seen the school desegregation order issued by the federal judge in Texas that you mentioned last week, and if so, do you have any comment?

"The President: Yes, I saw it. The attorney general got it showed it to me, and then made the comment on the end of it that I made a little while ago in response to what was the federal government's responsibility, which was, if the court decided that someone was in contempt, then they would call in the federal government to assist in the presentation of the case.

"Q (Martin S. Hayden, Detroit News): Mr. President, in your simplified explanation of the way in which the federal government would get into this school matter, you ended with the U.S. marshal getting an order to enforce the court's order.

"DO I UNDERSTAND, sir, that at that point it becomes the responsibility of the federal government to see that he has the power to do that?

"The President: Well, the federal judge, of course, is a federal officer in the judiciary branch.

"Now, I assume that if that marshal is not able to carry it out by himself, he has got the right to deputize any number of deputy marshals to help him carry it out. I really don't know what the next step is.

"I do know this: In a place of general disorder, the federal government is not allowed to go into any state unless called upon by the governor, who must show that the governor is unable with the means at his disposal to preserve order.

I believe it is called a Posse Comitatus Act—and I am now going back to my staff school of 1925—of 1862, and that is the thing that keeps the federal government from just going around where he pleases to carry out police duties.

"You Use It or I Will!"

'Too Much Too Soon'

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Unless all the sources available to me are mighty deceiving, the President's action in the Little Rock crisis has almost universal opposition in the South and, outside a few places like New York City, rather meager approval in the North.

Many times since the Supreme Court's decision, I have expressed strong criticism of Chief Justice Warren's opinion. He cited thoroughly bad sociological and psychological writings to justify his conclusion and also he failed to state in 1954 a way of implementing the decision through the federal courts in the South until after a whole year of confusion.

THERE IS ALSO the personality gathered evidence which has come in conversations in many states from coast to coast.

This is not 1860, when — because of the shoutings of politicians over many years, and the fact of slavery, and undeniably bad conditions in many parts of the South — the North was measurably, although not unanimously, opposed to the ideas and assertions of southern representatives.

This is 1957, when the South is generally the most rapidly growing part of the nation, when the southern Negro is enjoying real economic progress and when, because of the tremendous growth of federal power, the North itself is alarmed at the decline in the rights and privileges of the states.

Certainly the President must have had prejudiced and superficial advice, not only in prompting him to act when he did but in making a case for himself in his speech over the air.

It goes without saying that the President relied for advice in this instance upon his Justice Department.

If, as the President says, a considerable part of his concern was the effect of the incident abroad, will not pictures of this blitz provide wonderful Communist propaganda at a moment when we are denouncing the Soviet's crushing of the revolt in Hungary?

SPECULATIONS as to what the political outcome may be at this time decidedly out of order. But it can clearly be charged that many statements, speeches, and actions — running back to the 1954 decision — by the President's colleagues prove that political capital has been made or attempted to be made out of this segregation issue.

These, it might have been foreseen, were a very considerable part of the fuel that lit this fire.

It is too late to undo the harm that such indefensible vote-hunting has done. But it should at least be a warning to the President's advisers that the man in the White House is not merely the head of a party and the guarantee of their continuance in their jobs for three more years but that he is, above all, the President of the nation, whose greatest responsibility is to preserve "a more perfect union" among all its states and sections.

PERHAPS the President believed that one such display is enough. That is a matter for grave doubt. Incidental questions present themselves. Were bayonets necessary in this case?

Was it necessary to use forces of such size, and, to use the inflammatory language of some northern reporters, to have "trucksloads of paratroopers with fixed bayonets roar through the streets?"

Much government policy is made through the methods used by agencies to keep their accounts and to provide for the public and Congress a clear and genuinely honest picture of what they are doing and in what direction they are going.

By a deceptive use of figures, some agencies are actually in the business of pouring out public funds in subsidies, while they claim by doctored accounts that they are actually running a self-liquidating operation.

As a means of keeping a check on this sort of thing and to see that all transactions are money-honest and are properly authorized by Congress, a General Accounting Office was set up in 1921, headed by an official called the comptroller general of the United States.

THIS OFFICIAL was given great powers and was carefully protected from outside influences, political and otherwise.

His term is 15 years and he can be removed only by impeachment or by joint resolution of Congress for specified cause.

Thus, he is protected from removal or interference by the executive branch of the government and from the political designs of any president.

He is, in fact, a part of the legislative branch of the government and makes his reports to Congress. He is the major agency by which the Congress can exercise its responsibility for the spending of the taxpayers' money.

His power to make investigations into executive agencies is very great.

Either on his own initiative or at the direction of Congress, he can command all departments to provide information and cannot only report what an agency has been doing but can make recommendations for the future.

HOWEVER, as the first Hoover Commission reported in 1949, the comptroller generals up to that time had permitted their offices to be so utterly submerged in the job of more-or-less routine checking on millions of individual transactions that the more constructive responsibility of specific investigations was pushed aside.

In response to the Hoover recommendations, an act was passed in 1950 which assigned additional duties to the comptroller general and measurably cleared the way for an internal reorganization of the General Accounting Office.

But it has remained for the present comptroller general, Joseph Campbell, to take steps toward making the investigative functions of the office a real force in the administration of government.

His report on the military aid program has attracted wide attention in Congress and in the press.

His successive reports on TVA have been constructive and helpful to friends of economy and free enterprise.

A massive report on the Missouri River Basin Water Resources Development Program has brought light into an area long darkened by strange and doubtful estimates and projections.

THE EFFORTS of Campbell to improve his great office have been greatly helped and encouraged by a report last year on that office by the House Committee on Government Operations, a report largely credited to Congressman William L. Dawson of Illinois and Glenard P. Lipscomb of California.

Under the leadership of the present comptroller general, the investigative arm of his office may become substantially a continuing Hoover Commission.

This should save a great deal of taxpayers' money and provide a wholesome check on the growth of big and socialized government.

Mr. Gluck and Mr. Bandaranaike

"Maxwell Gluck, new American ambassador to Ceylon, has had his first meeting with Premier Solomon Bandaranaike." — News item.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Bandaranaike, give or take a wrongly pronounced syllable."

"I'm happy to see you, too, whether you're Gluck, Glock or Glook."

"It's to be admitted I found Ceylon names a little difficult to pronounce."

"You're lucky you weren't assigned to Thailand or Burma. But it isn't the name that counts; it's the man behind it. You have had an exciting career and a successful one in the women's apparel business."

"Yes, and when I began with one small store I never dreamed I'd wind up selling America to Ceylon."

"When I think of the troubles a man must endure to please the women customers in 125 stores I think my problems must be minor."

"On the contrary, facing such headaches in 125 stores is a minor task compared to being an Asiatic premier. After all, women shoppers stage no coups or revolutions, no matter how a dress fits."

THERE'S SOMETHING in that. We have much in common. We both are in a job where we have to be sure the alterations are right and the final fitting satisfactory."

"Well, I hope you will be happy in Ceylon, Mr. Glook."

"The name is Gluck, Mr. Blandelblake."

"Bandaranaike, if you please, Mr. Frook."

"Maybe we can both do better calling each other by our first name, Solomon."

"Okay, Max."

Telephone Cars Patrol Cleveland

Provide Only Service To West Side Area

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mobile telephone cars with lettering "emergency telephone" on the back are cruising an area the size of a small city on Cleveland's West Side.

They have the only operating telephones in the area while severed lines, which cut Ohio Bell Telephone Co., service to 5,000 subscribers, are being repaired. Five cars were on until 10 p.m. Tuesday, and two remained available during the night.

The company, involved in a strike with the Communications Workers of America, has supervisory personnel working at the task of matching the snapped ends of 9,600 wires.

Trunk lines, connecting various exchanges, also were cut by someone who went down through the manhole on 63rd Street Monday night, the company reported. The trunk line repairs are expected to be completed today.

The union has denied responsibility for the vandalism and offered to provide crews to repair the damage.

Union and company negotiators met Tuesday afternoon and night, but recessed until 2 p.m. today.

No progress was reported in Tuesday night's sessions, which broke up about 10:30 p.m.

Medical Bills For Old Age Pensioners Doubles

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio spent more than twice as much on medical bills for old age pensioners last month as it did in September, 1956, State Auditor James A. Rhodes reports.

The increase came despite a drop of almost 50 per cent in the number of cases handled, Rhodes said Tuesday.

Last month, according to his report, the state spent $706,951 in 4,497 cases. A year ago, it spent $306,344 in 8,670 cases.

September pension payments were also up from a year ago. Payments totaling $6,240,437 went to 93,709 of Ohio's aged last month under the state's Aid for the Aged program. In September, 1956, some 97,383 persons received a total of $5,941,637.

Claims Most Officials Are Honest

Embezzlement Becoming More Difficult in Ohio, Says Rhodes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Embezzlement by public officials is becoming more difficult in Ohio.

That is the opinion of State Auditor James A. Rhodes, who, as auditor, heads the State Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Officials.

About 250 examiners in the bureau make periodic reports to him on the books and records of public officials from the state level on down to the "grass roots".

A recent rash of embezzlement cases raised the question in some quarters as to whether public officials were becoming more dishonest.

"Emphatically not," Rhodes said. "Almost all public officials are honest and their accounting constantly is becoming more proficient."

Rhodes attributed the rash of small embezzlement cases to:

1. More frequent checks of public books and records by state examiners.

2. Better cooperation by local officials in asking special state examinations whenever wrongdoing is suspected.

"At least half of the shortages that we have brought to light this year," Rhodes said, "have resulted from the suspicions of other public officials."

"Then, too, we have caught up for the most part in the big backlog of long-overdue examinations which we inherited. Some extended back nearly a decade."

"Even with a reduced force of state examiners, the Bureau of Inspection is making more examinations than ever before, it is only natural that the more you dig, the more you will find."

The digging, he added, uncovered more cases of embezzlement this year than during any similar period in recent years.

One of the cases involved a privately employed salesman accused of overcharging Carroll County about $30,000 for tires since 1948. County officials and his employer were unaware of the situation until examiners ran it down, Rhodes reported.

The largest finding against a public official during the period was for about $600. Most were for small sums. A total of 307 audits last August and September turned up four embezzlement cases involving public officials.

Prosecution of cases uncovered by examiners is up to county and municipal officials under Ohio law.

Rhodes termed efforts to bring examinations up to date a part of his program to streamline office operations through use of modern business machines and special training for employees. The results will be increased savings to taxpayers, he asserted.

Re-elected last year, Rhodes is the only elected official in an administrative state office serving a four-year term. Other elective state officials, from the governor on down, are serving for two years. But a voter-approved change in the constitution will make the terms of those offices four years, starting in 1959.

Instead of running for any other office next year, Rhodes said he will campaign for the Republican slate of candidates, expected to be headed by Gov. C. William O'Neill.

During his first term as auditor, Rhodes ran unsuccessfully against Frank J. Lausche, now U. S. Senator, in Lausche's bid for a fifth term as governor. Because the campaign took place during his four-year term, Rhodes continued as auditor despite his defeat in the gubernatorial race.

He expressed belief that Ohioans and their newspapers are becoming more alert to public inefficiency and wrongdoing.

"People everywhere are more concerned than ever before about the expenditure of taxpayers' money," Rhodes said. "They are conscious of waste and inefficiency in the administration of public affairs. They do not hesitate to make their sentiments known. This is keeping public officials constantly on their toes."

"Newspapers are more alert than ever before in ferreting out inefficiency and wrongdoing and just as zealous in bringing both to the attention of the public."

WESLEYAN CLASS of the Bunker Hill Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Graden Cook of Calla Road Monday night. Mrs. Robert Maurer was co-hostess.

Nineteen attended, and during the business session it was decided not to hold a supper previously planned for Smith Grange.

The study of the Book of St. Mark was presented by the secretary of missionary education, Mrs. Chester Lucas. Mrs. Ray Stanley was instructor when the first four chapters were covered.

The hostesses served a lunch, assisted by their daughters, Miss Jeanine Cook, and Miss Cheryl Maurer.

The next class meeting will be Oct. 28 with Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. Lester McCrea as hostesses. Mrs. Wesley Todor and Mrs. Norman Karlen will have charge of the program.

MRS. HARRY Thomas of the Damascus Road will be hostess to members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Bunker Hill Methodist Church Thursday at 8 p.m. at her home.

The group will continue the study of the Book of Mark.

NEW OFFICERS will be installed at a special ceremony when the delegates of the Salem Federation of Women's Clubs met Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Ruth Smucker House. Mrs. Arthur Schropp will be installing officer.

All new and retiring delegates and all new and retiring presidents of member clubs are asked to attend.

Choir Parents Will Aid In Salem High Group Activities

Edwin Miller, director of the Salem High School Chorus, spoke at a recent meeting of the Salem High School Chorus Parents Club in the music room at the school.

Mrs. Ernest Schroeder, president, who introduced Mr. Miller, also introduced the other new officers: Vice president, Mrs. Harry Loria; secretary, Mrs. Don Getz; and treasurer, Charles Vincent.

Mr. Miller discussed the main purpose of the club, which is to provide transportation for the children to various out-of-town concerts. He stressed the need of parents' cooperation and stated that, through the efforts of the club last year, all trips of the groups last term were financed by club and choir projects.

Mr. Miller said no definite plans have been made for this year's activities, but that the prospects are good for a well-rounded program. There are 65 in the girls chorus, 87 boys and girls in the robed choir and a large number in the beginners chorus.

The choir members have planned a benefit to start Oct. 11. Part of the proceeds will be used for a scholarship fund for a talented student to attend next summer's choral clinic at Berea. Chosen for this honor by the choir members this past summer was Culley Livingston.

Mr. Miller noted the need for a tape recorder which would aid pupils in the choral work.

Other projects were discussed and chairmen were named. Reports will be given at the Oct. 22 meeting. It was voted to continue to hold meetings the fourth Tuesday of each month during the school term.

Miss Frary Welcomed When Methodists Hold Program

Approximately 150 people gathered in Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church Monday for the first "family night" of the season. The event served as an official church welcome for Miss Martha Jane Frary, the new director of Christian education.

Miss Frary has been working in the local church during the summer and is now working toward a master's degree in religious education at Oberlin Seminary. Until after the first of the year, she will attend college during the week and work at the church Fridays through Mondays.

Upon completion of this work, she will serve on the church staff full time. Miss Frary's home is in Creston, O. She has had experience in Christian education work while serving the Rockport Methodist Church near Cleveland. The program opened with group singing led by Mrs. Walter Hunston, accompanied by Miss Dixie Wilde.

Walter Hunston served as master of ceremonies and gave the welcome on behalf of the official board and the church family.

A service of recognition and dedication was led by Rev. William Snowball, in which officers, teachers, Miss Frary and all those present participated.

Miss Patricia Wyckoff sang "My Task" accompanied by Miss Wilde. William Keck, chairman of the commission on education, introduced Miss Frary and the church school workers. Miss Frary was presented a planter by the commission.

Focal point of interest for the evening was the worship setting centered on the stage. The theme, "Talent - Time - Service" was carried out in bronze lettering against the stage curtain. The cross open Bible and Sallman's "Head of Christ" were used effectively along with an arrangement of roses on the worship table.

Mrs. James Cunningham arranged the table decorations and assisted Mrs. Roy West and Mrs. Walter Hanzlick with the worship setting. The Wesleyan Service Guild served as hostesses. Mrs. Frank Stoudt and Mrs. Hanzlick assisted with arrangements.

The meeting was concluded with a union prayer of consecration. Several members of the M.Y.F. and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doyle entertained the children in the kindergarten room. Filmstrips were shown by Larry Tuttle.

Phoebe Fraunces Chapter, DAR To Hold Guest Night

Guest night will be observed when Phoebe Fraunces Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution meets Oct. 21 at the home of Mrs.

Joseph Boone of Park Ave. Max Gard, guest speaker, will talk on "Historical Places."

Members are reminded to bring donations of clean used clothing in good condition to send to the DAR approved schools. Mrs. William Corso is chairman of the project. Clothes for adults or children will be acceptable and should be marked according to size.

Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Columbiana will discuss the DAR American Indian project, and Mrs. Mary Louise Duffy, also of Columbiana, will report on the chapter's contribution to the Indian program.

Serving on the social committee will be Mrs. Jesse Beck, chairman, Mrs. Clyde Dole, Mrs. Arch Wentz and Mrs. Michael Schuller. Seven members of the local chapter attended a recent Northeast district conference in Youngstown. Mrs. Arthur T. Davis of Alliance, state regent, opened the session, and Mrs. Marian Burns of Lakewood, district director, presided.

Mrs. Carson J. Clancy, Mahoning Chapter regent, welcomed the 218 officers and members in attendance. Mahoning Chapter members were hostesses at the conference which was held in Westminster Presbyterian Church. The chairmen of nearly 30 state committees gave reports of their work at the all-day session. A luncheon was served at noon.

Attending from the local chapter were Mrs. Mae Smith and Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Columbiana, Mrs. W. H. Vanskiver, Mrs. Jack Herstrom, who served as page, Mrs. E. E. Logue, Mrs. W. W. Brown and Mrs. Schuller, all of Salem.

The state conference will be March 17-19 in Cincinnati. Continental Congress is to be April 14-18 in Washington, D.C. where the Ohio reception will be held April 13 from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Mayflower Hotel.

SEAFOOD COCKTAIL. 36 shell clams or oysters, or 1 pound cooked crab meat, lobster meat, shrimp, or flaked fish, ¼ cup chili sauce, ¼ cup chopped celery, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon horseradish, ½ teaspoon salt.

Combine all ingredients except fish and shellfish. Chill. Serve with clams or oysters on the half shell or ome chilled fish or shellfish in lettuce-lined cocktail glasses. Serves 6.

Guarding Your Health

Contagious Diseases

It is difficult for many people to realize what a terrible toll in illness and death was taken by some contagious diseases. Certainly our better chances for long life are due greatly to the fact that many of these diseases have become rare.

One reason for the conquest of these infections is the development and use of preventive vaccinations or inoculations.

Today, in North America, most children are given their first protective vaccinations early in life. But they have to be followed up by booster immunizations later on to keep up resistance.

Today it is customary to give injection within the first few weeks of life, or certainly the first few months. The diseases concerned are diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus or lockjaw. In many instances these injections can be given in combined form against two or even three of these diseases.

A infant has some natural immunity to smallpox at birth so that vaccination against smallpox is often given a little later.

Inoculations should be repeated in later years of childhood and even in adult life, under certain circumstances, if one would keep resistant. Fortunately, the regulations of schools, summer camps and the like frequently serve as reminders of the need.

Although these protective vaccinations are the most common - or at least have been - there are others which are desirable. The most recent addition is polio vaccination. I believe that today this should be also given routinely to children at the proper age.

Among others is vaccination against typhoid fever, a germ disease usually contracted from contaminated fluids or food. If a person is going to some part of the world where the sanitation is poor, inoculation against typhoid and possibly other diseases may be desirable. Under special circumstances, one may also need protective inoculations against yellow fever, cholera, typhus, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and others.

The advice of the physician who takes care of the child from birth should be followed when it comes to giving protective inoculations. Physicians do not all handle the situation exactly alike.

Household Hints

Ever prepare "steeped" coffee? To make it, pour boiling water over the coffee and let it stand over very low heat about 10 minutes. Be sure to keep the heat so low that the water doesn't simmer. Throw in a tablespoon or so of cold water and the grounds will settle. Then strain and serve at once.

Polls 57 Per Cent of Vote

Celebrezze Wins Re-Election To Third Term in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze, a possible future candidate for governor of Ohio or U. S. senator, handily won re-election to a third term Tuesday. He polled 57 per cent of the vote in a three-way non-partisan primary for the $25,000-a-year post.

The victory means that the 47-year-old independent Democrat won't face a run-off in November, and can concentrate his efforts on passage of a 15-million-dollar bond issue for redevelopment of downtown Cleveland.

Observers believe passage of the bond issue would further strengthen Celebrezze's chances for governor or senator.

The bond issue would be the city's contribution of a lakefront development, mostly financed by private capital. It would include an underground convention hall, an office tower and a swank hotel.

The final election vote was Celebrezze 73,230; Mark McElroy 42,769, and Michael E. Gallagher 12,361.

Under Cleveland law, no primary is held if only one or two candidates file. If two file, the winner is decided in November.

putation within the radar set, the ground speed is determined and presented on a dial.

When two beams are used, angled forward to the right and left of the plane, the readings are compared automatically and give not only the plane's true speed over the ground but show wind drift—the sideways slippage of the plane from action of the wind.

A navigator has only to put into the computer the latitude and longitude of the plane at the start of the flight and the same information for the destination.

Once the plane is airborne, the computer takes the information supplied by the Doppler Radar and the compass, computes its present position and the course it must fly to reach the destination. It also computes the distance to be traveled. This information is presented on dials for the pilot's guidance or can be fed into an automatic pilot which flies the airplane to its destination.

The pilot need keep only one indicator arrow pointed straight up to stay on his computed course. When he reaches his destination, a light glows to signal the trip's end.

KENNEL CLUB TO MEET
The regular meeting of the Columbiana County Kennel Club will be held this evening at 7 at the Lape Hotel.

School Bus Drivers Attend Workshop

One hundred and twenty-five school bus drivers attended the drivers workshop held Tuesday evening at United High School.

E. D. Sessions of Ohio State University spoke on public relations among drivers, parents, children and school officials.

State Highway Patrol Sgt. Homer Hall of Columbus, driver's license examiner and State Highway Patrol school bus inspector, warned the drivers never to take the motoring public for granted. Frank Cochran of the state division of transportation said that last year 30 fatal accidents involving school children getting on or off of buses occurred in 38 states. Twenty-five of the children were hit by motorists passing the buses, he said.

Merle Darrach, state patrolman stationed at the Lisbon barracks, gave a breakdown of school buses in the county and told drivers that this was the best year, inspection-wise, in the past three years. He said of the 122 buses in Columbiana County and inspected by the patrol, 73 were found satisfactory; 39, unsatisfactory; and 10, unserviceable and ruled off the roads. Breakdown in the county is as follows, city, 26 buses, 13 satisfactory, 7 unsatisfactory, 6 County, 75 buses, 42 satisfactory, 26 unsatisfactory, 7 unsafe. Exempted villages, 15 buses, 11 satisfactory, 4 unsatisfactory.

Catholic schools, 6 buses, 1 satisfactory, 2 unsatisfactory, 3 unserviceable.

Steven Lewis of the Ohio Employees Association spoke to drivers about the association which they are eligible to join.

Warren Tuesday refused to disturb a Circuit Court of Appeals decree setting aside a temporary injunction by Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts which would have prevented the Teamsters from electing new officers at their convention here this week.

When Beck announced to the convention news of Warren's decision, delegates jumped to their feet shouting and hurling scraps of paper into the air.

Hoffa suddenly appeared on the rostrum and raised Beck's hand in the traditional prize ring signal of victory. At that point, the shouting rose to a frenzied roar of what appeared to be a personal ovation for Hoffa.

A few minutes later, M. W. Miller of Dallas, Southern Teamster boss, chairman of convention arrangements and ardent Hoffa supporter, jubilantly declared, "Did you see that out there—we just held the election."

The demonstration was the only highlight of an otherwise dull day on the convention floor.

As the session opened, Beck ordered the Credentials Committee to take another look at credentials of all delegates questioned by a Senate committee investigating labor racketeering.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) wired Beck Monday that his committee had information that delegates from 68 Teamster locals were not legally selected.

Thus, with part of the convention's 1,900 delegates still not formally seated, Beck confined the day's business to adoption of non-controversial changes in the union's constitution.

Many of those were technical. Others restrict the wide authority of the general president and give more power to the executive board and the general secretary-treasurer, particularly over spending and investments.

All recommendations for constitutional changes to which there were any objections, Beck referred back to committee for consideration after the seating of delegates has been settled.

Arabs Expected to Say That Syria Is No Threat to Peace

BULLETIN
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Saudi Arabia today rejected western charges that Soviet arms shipments were endangering peace in the Middle East. Instead, it said the tension was caused by the relics of western imperialism.

In a policy declaration before the 82-nation General Assembly, Minister of State Ahmad Shukairy called on the U.N. to adopt a hands-off attitude and let the Middle East settle its own problems.

Neither Syria nor Egypt, the Arab nations' fiercest enemies, spoke in the general debate.

Saudi Arabia was slated to lead the Arab trio in the general debate before the 82-nation Assembly. Jordan and Iraq were to follow.

In an Assembly speech last week, U.S. Secretary of State Dulles declared the flow of Soviet arms into Syria might unwittingly lead the Arab recipient into acts of direct aggression.

Syria canceled two appearances scheduled last week. Observers believe Syria's delay is a result of Saudi Arabian King Saud's visit last week to Damascus, where he reportedly tried to find a basis for friendly relations between Syria and the United States, Jordan and Iraq.

There have been indications that Saud appealed to President Eisenhower to modify the U.S. government's hostility to the Syrian regime.

Observers at the Damascus party reported a subtle change appeared to be taking place in Syria's viewpoint towards the West, with indications she was opening the door for new negotiations.

In another development, the General Assembly agreed to debate the Soviet-proposed question of peaceful coexistence and non-interference in the affairs of other countries. Another U.S.-Russian clash between Russia and the United States was anticipated when the Assembly's Political Committee takes up the item.

Russia is expected to repeat its charge that the United States is tampering in the internal affairs of Syria and trying to sow dissension in the Arab world. The United States, which voted to debate the item, presumably will counter that the Soviets are endangering peace in the Middle East by selling arms to Syria, Egypt and Yemen.

Elsewhere in the U.N., an Algerian rebel leader sought U.N. support to force France to negotiate on the rebel demands for Algerian independence.

M'Hammed Yazid in a note to the Political Committee said a settlement of the North Africa territory's future must be worked out by negotiations between France, the Algerian Front of National Liberation, which Yazid represents, and the former French protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco.

Reporters said white students apparently try to block some of the Negroes when they went to classes Tuesday. The Negroes walked around the other students. One Negro girl dropped her books, or they were knocked from her grasp, and guardsmen doubted to her but took no other action.

Except for this incident, all appeared serene outside the school Tuesday.

Finance committee chairman Fred Koenreich told Council that the finance committee had made no decision on the measure and that it was up to Council as a whole to decide.

Negley Precinct Voting Place Is Moved
EAST LIVERPOOL — Although the voting place for the Negley precinct of Middletown Township has been moved, it's still in the Masonic Temple, Township Clerk Earl Davis advised the County Election Board today.

The polling place was shifted from the old Masonic Temple to the new Masonic Temple, which is on Richardson Ave., Davis advised the board. The move involved a shift 300 feet west on Richardson Ave., he explained.

Series Roles Of Mantle, Skowron Uncertain

Both Sluggers Are Still Ailing

Crowd of 70,000 To See First Game

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The uncertain condition of Mickey Mantle's tender left leg and Bill Skowron's aching back belied the 8-5 odds on the New York Yankees today in the World Series opener against the Milwaukee Braves.

The crowd of some 70,000 expected to view the southpaw duel between New York's Whitey Ford and Milwaukee's Warren Spahn probably will not see either Mantle or Skowron at their best, although both were listed as almost certain starters.

Unless the two sluggers, who between them hammered 51 home runs and drove in 181 runs during the regular season, get healthy quick—and this would be a real upset—the pick here is a seven-game series triumph for the fit and ready Braves.

The picture of a hobbling Mantle on a painful leg in the 1955 series against Brooklyn, the only series lost by the Yankees in nine October classics since 1942, is still clear in the writer's mind.

Mantle cannot run without pain. He even winces when he misses one of his powerhouse swings. Skowron says it doesn't hurt him to swing but it does hurt when he runs. It would come as no surprise if either or both were unable to do full-time duty in the series.

There is still even some doubt about Ford. The ace left-hander appears to be back in true stride after a sore shoulder siege, but there is a question whether he can undergo the strain of pitching twice or three times in one week, as the opening day pitcher usually is called upon to do in a long series.

Because the teams appear so evenly matched, the outlook is for a long series.

The Braves are in excellent physical shape, with the possible exception of Joe Adcock. The big first baseman's left leg, broken last July, still isn't completely back to normal.

Adcock, a long-ball-hitting right-handed batter, was slated to start against Ford today. However, Manager Fred Haney indicated he may shift to the left-handed-hitting Frank Torre, who filled in so capably for Big Joe during the summer, when the Yankees use a right-hander.

Stengel, who had expected to come back with another left-hander, Bobby Shantz, in the second game, appeared uncertain after Tuesday's workout at Yankee Stadium.

"I'm not so sure left-handers are a better bet than right-handers against Milwaukee," Casey said. "My Thursday pitcher depends upon what happens to my Wednesday pitcher. If the Braves should treat Ford a little too roughly, I'll probably give them Bob Turley (a right-hander). If Whitey does a commendable job, it will be Shantz."

Haney has no doubt regarding his starters, although he insisted after the Braves' workout he was prepared to use everybody in every game. You can be sure that it will be Lew Burdette Thursday and Bob Buhl Saturday in Milwaukee. Then the merry-go-round starts again with Spahn, Burdette and Buhl in that order.

If the series goes into the seventh and final game, you can look for Spahn to make his third starting appearance next Thursday in Yankee Stadium, unless he has to be used in relief before that. "Barring the unforeseen," Haney said, "I plan to go with three pitchers all through the series, with the others all to be used in relief, if the occasion calls for it."

The series, because of the large seating capacity in both parks, was expected to set a new money record for the players.

Booster Club To See Timken Game Film

The Salem Boosters Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Memorial Building.

Earle Bruce, head football coach, will go over last week's movies of the Canton Timken game, and speak on what to expect this week.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By RUFUS L. LIDE

There seems to be more local-hatched mallards and wood ducks on the lakes and marshy areas this year than I have ever observed before.

There is a reason for this successful nesting season in the local area where I have been able to make these observations but I cannot pinpoint the controlling factor.

The shooting hours for ducks, geese, brant and coot are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour before sunset. The open season, Oct. 18 to Dec. 26, both dates inclusive.

FOR SOME STRANGE REASON a lone bluebird has stayed on Westville Lake all summer and is there at present writing. He should have moved on to the far north nesting grounds. At any rate he won't last long when the season opens because he is accustomed to boats and fishermen.

DOVES, SOMETIMES CALLED mourning doves, can be seen gathering in both small and large groups in preparation for their annual winter migration south. Ohio reared doves provide good shooting for southern states and also good eating. They are classified in Ohio as song birds and protected by law.

Some people think doves are about as wary as robins. That is not so. Even pheasants, quail, deer, rabbits and most any kind of birds and animals can be seen along the highways and apparently not afraid of people.

But when hunting season rolls around you have to hunt and hunt hard to get the daily limit except in some cases where the game is pretty well congregated in a particular environment.

After the first two days of hunting, game "smarten up" and know how to hide, run or take off well ahead of the gunner. If this wasn't true there wouldn't be brood stock left for the following year.

Game technicians know pretty accurately in advance how much hunting pressure can be allowed which is why we have changes from time to time in the laws, some season closed and some advanced.

RABBITS SEEM to be about the same as last year while pheasants seem to be increasing in some areas according to my roadside observations.

I counted and estimated 32 young pheasants in one group running across the highway and standing along side and I am sure many had run into the corn field before I could see them all.

A friend riding along with me said he never knew there were so many pheasants in this county. I remind him that we had covered only a very small portion of the county so let us not assume we have seen all of the birds by any means.

FARMERS AND SPORTSMEN will help the sport by reporting anyone known guilty of roadside shooting before season. Shooting from or across the highway or from any motor driven conveyance carries a penalty of $25 to $200 and costs, plus the same penalty for shooting any game out of season.

The "highway hog" should be dealt with accordingly. He is one of the more contemptible violators.

Get the auto license number and if possible a good look at the violator, then contact the nearest game protector immediately. Most any type of game makes an easy target along the highway at this time of the year.

Pheasant hunting began Sept. 15 on the Valley View Commercial Shooting Preserve located on the Mangus farm south of Washington.

These birds are pen reared birds that are banded before release and all birds shot without bands must be replaced and released on open territory.

This serves the purpose for area business men who want to get in a little shooting without too much work and serves the Youngstown-Salem area conveniently.

Bragan Wants To Keep All Tribe Coaches

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Indians' new manager, Bobby Bragan, said Tuesday he wants to keep all three Indian coaches—Eddie Stanky, Mel Harder and Red Kress.

Stanky, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, took over the third base coaching job under Kerby Farrell's short regime. He said he'd be happy to return.

Harder and Kress, who predate Farrell in the Indian organization, also are expected to stay around. Harder, who pitched 223 victories in 20 seasons for the Indians, became pitching coach in 1948. Kress joined the club as coach in 1953 after a career as player and manager dating back to 1927.

Stanky was Farrell's candidate for the manager job, but General Manager Hank Greenberg said the only man he considered was Bragan. Bragan said he will go through with his commitment to manage the Almadens club in the Cuban League this winter. The Cuban team has agreed to let him attend the U. S. baseball meetings in December, and to visit Cleveland early next year.

"I'm looking forward to seeing Cleveland," he said. "The closest I ever got was the airport, Cleveland stadium is the one big league park I've never been in."

Browns Are Rated Four-Point Favorites Over Pittsburgh

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns are expected to be in better physical condition to meet the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night than they were in when the bruising New York Giants came to town.

Guards Herschel Forest and Jim Ray Smith both were in less than top shape when the Browns upset the Giants 6-3 Sunday.

Forester went into the game with a knee injury. Coach Paul E. Brown said the guard "gave a fine effort in spite of the injury. In fact," he added, "the whole team went all out... it was a great effort."

The Browns, on the basis of their Giant-killing exploit, are four-point favorites against the Steelers.

Coach Buddy Parker's Steelers, who rolled over Washington's Redskins 28-7 Sunday, may have an offensive threat that didn't make the game in Washington. That would be halfback Dean Derby, obtained last week from the Los Angeles Rams.

Derby, a speedy rookie from the

Lisbon Meets E. Palestine In Top Tri-County Contest

It will be a battle of the undefeated in the Tri-County league "game of the week" this Friday night when the powerful East Palestine Bulldogs travel to Lisbon to meet Bud Bucher's Blue Devils. Both clubs are 2-0 in league play and 3-0 for the season.

Other league tilts on tap this weekend include Minerva at Leetonia on Friday night and Sebring at Poland Saturday afternoon.

Columbiana will be at home against non-league Canfield while undefeated Louisville will be host to North Canton Friday night.

East Palestine has bowled over three opponents by the scores of 26-6 over Leetonia, 46-0 over Sebring and 60-0 over non-league Newton Falls.

Lisbon has beaten Cleveland Wickliffe 48-19, Minerva 20-6 and Poland 14-0.

Coach John Hogan of Palestine, when questioned about Lisbon, said, "we think they're a very good team but they're just another game for us." He added that, "every game is important to us and Lisbon is no different. That's just our feeling."

On the other hand, Lisbon coach Bud Bucher remarked that Palestine is "big and awful rough." He had no other comment.

Bucher said that guard Bob Taffin, who missed last week's game against Poland, probably won't be able to see action again this week against the Bulldogs because of a bad knee while fullback Wilford Carlisle might play only a few minutes on defense as he did last Friday.

Neither mentor had come out of their games last week with any injuries.

Leetonia's Bears should break into the win column this Friday night at home against Minerva. Although both clubs have lost all of their games, the home forces under Coach Pat Mancuso should cross into the winning land.

Leetonia put up a stiff fight before losing in the last 42 seconds to Goshen last Saturday at Sebring 20-13. The Bears running game sparked by Bob Osterling, Jim Rance and Joe Mango hit on 2 of 6 aeriels.

Minerva, in three defeats in 1957, has maneuvered across their opponent's goal line only once. That was in a 20-6 defeat to Lisbon. They were blanked by Sandy Valley 31-0 and Columbiana 26-0.

Leetonia has lost to Palestine 26-6 and Louisville 20-0 besides the Goshen defeat.

In one other league affair, Poland should win their third league tussle in three outings against weak hitting Sebring. The Trojans have not scored in league play while their two adversaries have rolled for 78 points against them. Sebring lost to Palestine 46-0 and Louisville 32-0. They own an opening 13-7 win over Newton Falls.

Poland has beaten Columbiana 13-0 while losing to Boardman 12-6 and Lisbon 14-0.

Louisville won't lose any ground in their fight for league laurels with Palestine. The Leopards, despite their outcome against North Canton, will keep intact a 2-0 record and even though Palestine might advance to a 3-0 mark, both clubs will carry .1000 percentage.

Columbiana, supporting a year's slate of 2-1, meets Canfield, a 7-0 winner over Springfield Local last week. The Clippers have beaten Minerva 26-0 and McDonald 26-14.

but have lost to Poland 13-0.

Jack Rukenbrod of East Palestine remained unchanged atop the heap of league scorers last weekend although his team encountered a non-league foe. The Bulldog quarterback has 24 markers on four T.D.'s.

In second place is teammate George Hull with 20 points on three scores and two extra points. Bill Minton of Lisbon is third with 18 points on three trips into paydirt.

Finishing out the "front five" is Bill Keyser of Louisville and Beau Bell of Palestine. Keyser is a newcomer to the scoring race this week as his two touchdowns against Sebring brought his total to 18. Bell also had 18.

A total of 26 players have entered into the race for league scoring honors amidst the eight league teams. This is an average of over three players per team competing for the title.

Football Player's Stepfather Blasts Owner of Bears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harvey Knox, stepfather of football's wounding minstrel, Ronnie Knox, had many a verbal scrimmage with UCLA coach Red Sanders while Ronnie was wearing a Bruin uniform.

Well, Knox the elder now has crossed swords with the Papa Bear himself—George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears.

In a telephone call to the Associated Press bureau here Tuesday, Harvey accused Halas of "unjust dealings" with Ronnie, who joined the Bears five weeks ago.

Harvey, who handles publicity for his stepson, said Ronnie was paid a mere $75 by the Bears for suiting up for four exhibition games.

As a result, Harvey said, Ronnie is joining the Professional Football Players Assn., which is seeking to have players paid $50 for each exhibition game.

In Chicago, Halas shot back: "Harvey has simply jumped the gun. The $75 Ronnie received was meal money. Our players will each receive $500 for participating in exhibition games at the end of the season."

Halas added—perhaps pointedly—that players released or cut by the team are paid immediately for being with the team during exhibition games.

As a baby Bear, Ronnie has been in on a total of nine plays in the exhibition season. Ronnie came to the Bears by way of three southern California high schools, two universities (California and UCLA) and National Guard.

World Series Notes

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Hubbell the old New York Giants' southpaw, picks pitcher Gene Conley as the potential star of the World Series, which opened in the Yankee Stadium today between the New York Yankees and the Milwaukee Braves.

"He is particularly effective against a club the first time they see him. With those long arms and legs you don't know where the pitch is coming from," he said.

Yank infielder-outfielder Joe Collins usually wears tape around his right wrist. Asked what was wrong, he cracked: "Nothing, it just looks good." Said Yank starter Whitey Ford when he was asked if he'd like to pitch three games: "I'd like it better if four Yankee pitchers have one start each and then we all go home."

Basilio, 30-year-old former onion farmer from Syracuse, N.Y., won "Boxer of the Month" designation in the NBA's October ratings for his split decision victory over Sugar Ray Robinson in their middleweight title bout at New York Sept. 23. The defeat dropped the 37-year-old Robinson to the No. 1 contender's slot.

But, in Basilio's case, "out of consideration for his past reputation as a boxer of integrity and courage," said the NBA gave him 10 days to make up his mind. The 10-day period expired today with no word from Basilio, said.

Ohio State Given Nod

Oklahoma, Michigan State, Navy Selected As Winners

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP) — There's always agitation for the return of the kicking phase to college football. Those agitators should see the kicks received when 12 of 44 predictions are wrong as was the case a week ago.

That dropped the season's average from .822 to .770. Last week's aggregate was .727. Here's hoping the readers will do more passing than kicking in the immediate future.

Oklahoma over Iowa State: The Sooners show their new model crusher to the home folks.

Michigan State over California: After you've seen the World Series on TV, you can relax with Coach Duffy Daugherty as his Spartans romp over the Californians.

Navy over North Carolina: The Navy eleven this year is of the battleship class.

Baylor over Miami: Houston beat Miami, Baylor beat Houston.

Oregon State over Northwestern: Because Joe Francis and Earnel Durden play for the West Coast Beavers.

Ohio State over Washington: Neither team has shown to advantage so far but the Buckeyes should take this one.

Notre Dame over Indiana: Aubrey Lewis to give the Hoosiers a long, dreary afternoon.

Iowa over Washington State: The West Coast team's passing attack no match for Iowa's defensive-minded Hawkeyes.

Michigan over Georgia: The Wolverines get ready for the big game with Michigan State next week.

Duke over Maryland: It is homecoming for Duke and the grads will be back to watch Hal McElhenny cavort.

Skippping over the others in a hurry:

FRIDAY NIGHT

Pittsburgh over Southern California, Montana over Brigham Young.

SATURDAY

EAST: Dartmouth over Penn. Boston College over Quantico Marines, Princeton over Columbia, Cornell over Harvard, Villanova over Florida State, Penn State over Army, Holy Cross over Dayton, Syracuse over Boston University, Brown over Yale.

MIDWEST: Houston over Cincinnati, Colorado over Kansas, Illinois over Colgate, Kansas State over Nebraska, Tulane over Marquette, Texas A&M over Missouri, Oklahoma State over Wichita, Wisconsin over West Virginia, Purdue over Minnesota.

SOUTH: N. C. State over Clemson, Auburn over Chattanooga, The Citadel over Davidson, George Washington over Furman, Kentucky over Florida, Tennessee over Mississippi State, Vanderbilt over Alabama, Wake Forest over Virginia, Virginia Military over Richmond, Virginia Tech over William & Mary.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over Texas Christian, Louisiana State over Texas Tech, Rice over Stanford, Texas over South Carolina.

FAR WEST: Air Force Academy over Detroit, Utah over Idaho, Arizona State over San Jose, Wyoming over Utah State, UCLA over Oregon.

OSU To Hold Hard Practice Sessions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes says he'll continue giving his team a steady diet of rough, hard football practice this week.

It was the Bucks' failure to really mix it up that contributed to Ohio State's 14-18 loss to Texas Christian University Saturday, says Hayes, and he's not taking any chance that the same thing will happen in the University of Washington game Saturday.

Tuesday, the Bucks put in two hours of tough practice, including some heavy defensive drills. A weak defense also contributed to the Buckeyes' loss to TCU, Hayes said.

The OSU coach said he was pleased with Tuesday's workout, but added that, unlike last week, there will be no letup as the weekend game draws near.

The Buckeyes continued to practice aerial plays, indicating that Hayes may still have plans to make the pass an important part of offense, Hayes said before the TCU game that the Bucks were primed for aerial plays, but only three passes were tossed.

Preparing for the Washington encounter will be less trouble than the Texas Christian game, Hayes said, because the Huskies' offense is similar to OSU's.

Pitt's Gob Rated 'Lineman of Week'

By The Associated Press
With only 22 seconds left, end Art Gob Caught a touchdown pass Saturday night at Portland, Ore. that resulted in a 6-3 victory for Pitt over Oregon.

That achievement brought the 20-year-old Pitt wingman the lineman of the week award today in the first Associated Press poll of the season.

The 6-4 junior, who weighs 225 pounds and lives in Baldwin Boro. a Pittsburgh suburb, had raced into the end zone before catching a 22-yard aerial from Ivan Tonic for the TD that turned apparent defeat into victory for the Panthers.

Dick Carr, a Pitt guard, also earned votes in the balloting by sportswriters and broadcasters. He blocked a punt late in the final quarter that gave Pitt the ball on the Oregon 25 and helped set the stage for Gob's game-winning catch.

Also prominent was Bob Blackwell, rugged Wichita center, who played well although his team lost to Cincinnati. A junior from Bryn Mawr, Pa., Blackwell was named the Missouri Valley Conference lineman of the week.

Volleyball League Organization Planned

All organizations or persons interested in sponsoring a volleyball team are urged to send a representative to a league organizational meeting to be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the Memorial Building, Rusty Tomlinson, building assistant manager, said today. Youngstown Kitchens was the champion in the 1956 season, winning 25 of 27 matches.

American League Approves 'Swap Plan' For Baseball Clubs

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox said today the American League would grant the National League's return to New York in a swap for the right to enter Los Angeles and San Francisco when and if it chooses to do so.

"We're not going to let the National League take over in the two most lucrative West Coast cities and then return to New York too," said Comiskey, also an alternate on major league baseball's Executive Council.

"Let's face it," he said. "In 15 years there will be only three two-team towns—New York, Chicago and Los Angeles."

He said he had proposed the swap plan to the American League and that it had been approved.

Going into Tuesday's separate league meetings, the American already had proposed an amendment to the major league constitution which would divide New York into two baseball territories after transfer of the National League's New York and Brooklyn franchises to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Only Brooklyn would remain open territory, shutting the National League out of the Bronx, Manhattan, Queens and Stater Island. Under Comiskey's compromise, the American League would also place Queens in the open classification. Queens is the only New York area looked upon as a feasible stadium site by city officials.

The two leagues, meeting in joint session with Commissioner Ford Frick, later unanimously supported a National League request to shelve any action in the matter until their December meeting "pending developments."

In a separate meeting, the National League owners:

1. Were advised the New York intent in their shift to San Francisco.

2. Gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a two-week extension, through Oct. 15, on the deadline for their final decision about moving to Los Angeles.

3. Changed their constitution to make only a three-fourths approval necessary for a franchise transfer, rather than the previous unanimous vote.

In Los Angeles, Harold McClellan, appointed to negotiate with the Dodgers, said the City Council is expected to approve an acceptable contract for Dodger consideration next Monday.

Things appeared to be rolling much more smoothly for the Giants. President Horace Stoneham announced he had reached an agreement with Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, for purchase of the San Francisco franchise in the Pacific Coast League.

All that remains for the actual shift of the Giants' National League franchise is an agreement with the Pacific Coast League concerning the amount of damages for invasion of its territory.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Government agents, who have been moving unnoticed through the Teamster-thronged lobbies of Miami Beach's luxury hotels, are convinced that powerful though Jim Hoffa is, he is not his own boss.

They are convinced that some combine of syndicate higher up is calling the shots — figuratively and literally. It is known that for days before the opening of the convention the team's little rock shook for the first time. He told intimates that he would quit — if he could. The word went out that "the boys" wouldn't let him step out now.

The government agents figure that no one man can run so roughly a terror machine as that which appears to take orders from Hoffa. It rolls from Miami to Tennessee, across to Kansas, once reached into Utah, back through Milwaukee, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and right on east back to New York.

OPPOSITIONS have been beaten with chains, dynamite, acid, burned, mauled with fists, probed and framed.

Virtually all these incidents have involved areas and men protected by Jim Hoffa or befriended by him. None of them have been repudiated before or after the crimes, which fill scores of dossiers in the Justice Department, the Treasury Department, and the inexorable crusading headquarters of Sen. John McClellan and his committee counsel, Robert Kennedy.

One of Hoffa's friends is Gerald Conolly who was put into the union business when Jim Hoffa saw to it that he got a Teamster charter in Minneapolis. When the federales closed in on Conolly, they found that he had a "dynamite list" of opponents. He is doing time for a little bombing matter now.

TO MAKE SPECIFICS out of generalities, it was Hoffa who got on the phone and, with the power of his burgeoning dynasty, "persuaded" the leader of the Hotel and Restaurant Union to give a charter to a criminal mob in Philadelphia. Some of these boys, in turn, threatened those who might testify against them with acid blinding.

Public pressures recently impelled the Hotel and Restaurant Union finally to withdraw that charter.

Hoffa has never repudiated the fact that he publicly stated that his friend Johnny (Dioguardi) Dio could have "any job" Dio wanted in the Teamsters.

That gallant offer was made to Dio — the man who was representing employers during a Teamster strike and running non-union dress shops.

There is a lawyer named William Bufalino who decided he could make more out of a juke box union than the legal profession.

THIS MAN was bitterly excoriated by a congressional committee in 1953. This committee said: "The Teamsters Union Local 985 (Detroit) through its president, William E. Bufalino, is the principal offender and perpetrator of the racketeering, extortion and gangsterism which was disclosed by the hearings."

"Mr. James R. Hoffa is unquestionably 'the teamster boss' in Detroit. He has been described as the 'brains' between this shake-down and power grab by Bufalino and his Teamster Local 985."

"In any event, Bufalino could not have succeeded in gaining monopolistic control of the co-ordinating business without the cognizance and approval of Hoffa."

Yet, just a few months ago, it was Bufalino who flew into Washington to help Hoffa fight his bribery rap. Bufalino was observed moving in and out of the union's national headquarters while he gathered material to prove that the air was filled with prejudice against the "Little Rock."

Bufalino's word, in Teamster headquarters and with others retained by Hoffa, was law.

Hoffa's ties in Chicago, Cleveland and other cities are a reasonable facsimile of these few examples.

Except for those who are in prison or ill, these friends are delegates to the convention.

They are the "enforcers" now keeping many other delegates in line.

They are being closely observed — with all the mechanisms of modern crime detection. And those who observe them know them to be too big an outfit, too heavily loaded with counter-investigators, wire-tappers (some of whom have even tried to bug high government officials) and money, to be run by just one man.

Even if that one man is James R. Hoffa — who no longer is a riddle.

Alcatraz Prisoner Faces Murder Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 25-year-old Alcatraz prisoner from Columbus, Ohio, will stand trial Nov. 4 on charges of knifing to death another convict at the prison.

Roland E. Simcox, the prisoner, is accused of killing Edward H. Gauvin, 23, of Floral Park, N.Y., with a homemade eight-inch copper knife June 6. Both men were sent to Alcatraz for mutiny in the Army in Korea.

Simcox was tried and acquitted May 29, 1956, of attempting to murder another convict with a knife.

Company Submits Low Construction Bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Knowlton Construction Co. of Bellefontaine, Ohio, Tuesday submitted the apparent low bid of $996,700 for general construction of a College of Education building at Ohio University at Athens.

The state had estimated the work would cost $987,356. Heating, plumbing, elevator and other installations will make total cost of the building more than $900,000.
